“Maximising the World’s Potential through Guidance”

What is IAEVG?

The International Association for Educational and Vocational Guidance (IAEVG) is the worldwide counsellors’ association and represents individuals as well as national and regional associations concerned with educational and vocational guidance on all continents.

The mission of IAEVG

The aims of educational and vocational guidance are to assist students and adults in making their personal decisions about learning and work. This is achieved by helping people to:

- understand and appreciate their skills and abilities
- relate effectively with others
- explore career alternatives
- develop appropriate plans for educational and career management
- promote better vocational qualifications at all levels
- contribute to equal access for girls and women in education and work
- integrate successfully in society and the labour market

The objectives of the association are

- to promote and improve communication between people and organizations active in educational and vocational guidance
- to encourage the continuing professional development of ideas, practice and research in the field of guidance and counselling
- to collect and disseminate information on the latest educational and vocational guidance practice, study and research

Benefits of Membership of IAEVG

As a member of IAEVG, you:

Special issue 15(1): “Childhood Career Development”

Guest Edited by:

Prof. Mark Watson, Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University, South Africa

Prof. Laura Nota, University of Padua, Italy

Dr. Mary McMahon, The University of Queensland, Australia

There has been consistent criticism that international literature on lifespan career development does not sufficiently consider the foundational stages of childhood career development. In recent decades there has been a greater focus on childhood career development, which has resulted in three substantive literature reviews, a special section of The Career Development Quarterly, and a book. There remains, however, a consensus that the literature on childhood career development remains fragmented, disparate and lacking in theory, research, practice and policy. It seems timely to consider recent developments in childhood career development.

The themes of the special issue include:

- (a) Advances in childhood career development theory
- (b) Innovations in practice and assessment related to childhood career development
- (c) Childhood career development research in diverse settings
- (d) Policy implications of childhood career development theory, research and practice

International scholars from the field of childhood career development are invited to contribute to this special issue of the International Journal for Educational and Vocational Guidance. Manuscripts would be considered that address the themes of the special issue. Original research papers and theoretical reviews are solicited for this special issue.

Although this issue will be jointly guest-edited by Distinguished Professor Mark Watson (mark.watson@nmmu.ac.za), Professor Laura Nota, University of Padua, Italy (laura.nota@unipd.it), and Dr. Mary McMahon, The University of Queensland, Australia (marylmcMahon@uq.edu.au), all articles are subject to approval by Editor-in-Chief, Professor Jérôme Rossier (ijevg@unil.ch).

This special issue is limited to 6 articles of 3,000–5,000 words (about 20 pages) each with an abstract of 80–100 words maximum. The use of the APA's Publication Manual (6th ed.) style and norms are required in submitting the articles to the Journal.

Authors will need to submit their work online through the Journal's Editorial Manager system, designating their submission as the article type: “SI: Childhood Career Development”

<http://www.editorialmanager.com/ijvo/>

Schedule for the special issue is fast-tracked for an earlier publication timeline as follows:

- Deadline for submission: June 30, 2014
- Deadline for revision: September 30, 2014
- Publication in the 15(1) issue: Online First (paper version in March 2015)

Questions may be directed to Prof. Watson, Prof. Nota, Dr. McMahon, or Prof. Rossier at the e-mail addresses listed above. We look forward to receiving your submissions and producing this special issue.

Special issue 15(3): “Guidance in Latin-America: searching for new perspectives”

Guest Edited by:

Prof. Julio González, University of Carabobo, Venezuela

Prof. Olga Oliveros, University of Carabobo, Venezuela

This special journal issue seeks to offer space for those committed to advancing and studying Guidance in Latin-America. In view of this, this journal issue asks researchers and practitioners to consider new perspectives in the field of guidance, questioning of today’s existing models, evaluate the cultural context of guidance and the analysis of the conditions on which basic parameters are applied. Original research papers and theoretical reviews are solicited for this special issue.

The themes of the special issue include:

- (a) The proposal of new approaches, models or perspectives in the field of guidance to propose another type of guidance potentially valid for Latin America.
- (b) The questioning of today’s existing models, approaches or perspectives.
- (c) The analysis of the conditions on which basic parameters “supposedly universal” are applied.

This special issue is limited to 6 articles of 3,000–5,000 words (about 20 pages) each with an abstract of 80–100 words maximum. The use of APA’s Publication Manual (6th ed.) style and norms are required in submitting the articles to the Journal.

Authors will need to submit their work online through the Journal’s Editorial Manager system, designating their submission as the article type: “SI: Guidance in Latin America”

<http://www.editorialmanager.com/ijvo>

Although this issue will be jointly guest-edited by Professor Julio González (juliogonzalez@gmail.com) and Professor Olga Oliveros (oeol84@hotmail.com), both of the University of Carabobo, Venezuela, all articles are subject to approval by Editor-in-Chief, Professor Jérôme Rossier (ijevg@unil.ch).

Schedule for the special issue

- Deadline for submission: June 30, 2014
- Notification of preliminary decision: October 15, 2014

- First-round revisions for accepted papers: December 15, 2014
- Second-round revisions and copy edits for accepted papers: January 15, 2015
- Final versions for accepted papers: April 15, 2015
- Publication in the 15(3) issue: Online First (paper version in October)

Questions may be directed to Professors González, Oliveros, or Rossier at the e-mail addresses listed above. We look forward to receiving your submissions and producing this special issue.
